big four accounting firms news: The Big Four Ian D. Gow, Stuart Kells, 2018-08-28 Messrs. Gow and Kells have made an invaluable contribution, writing in an amused tone that nevertheless acknowledges the firms' immense power and the seriousness of their neglect of traditional responsibilities. 'The Big Four' will appeal to all those interested in the future of the profession--and of capitalism itself. —Jane Gleeson-White, Wall Street Journal With staffs that are collectively larger than the Russian army and combined revenues of over $130 billion a year, the Big Four accounting firms—Deloitte, PricewaterhouseCoopers, Ernst & Young, and KPMG—are a keystone of global commerce. But leading scholar Ian Gow and award-winning author Stuart Kells warn that a house of cards may be about to fall. Stretching back to the Medicis in Renaissance Florence, this book is a fascinating story of wealth, power, and luck. The founders of the Big Four lived surprisingly colorful lives. Samuel Price, for example, married his own niece. Between the world wars, Nicholas Waterhouse collected postage stamps while also hosting decadent parties in his fashionable London home. All four firms have endured major calamities in recent decades. There have been hundreds of court cases and legal prosecutions for failed audits, tax scandals, and breaches of independence. The firms have come so close to “extinction level events” that regulators have required them to prepare “living wills.” And today, the Big Four face an uncertain future—thanks to their push into China, their vulnerability to digital disruption and competition, and the hazards of providing traditional services in a new era of transparency. This account of the past, present, and likely future of the Big Four is essential reading for anyone perplexed or fascinated by professional services, working or considering working in the industry, or simply curious about the fate of the global economy.

big four accounting firms news: Girl Transformed Daniel Crawford, 2025-05-19 Joy Crawford was a Hollywood, California, housewife, mother, and church lay person who totally revolutionized the way her church missions board did foreign missions. The way she did it was by persuading the board to adopt an unreached Buddhist people group located deep inside mainland China. Hollywood Free church then sent Joy to Singapore to be trained as a missions strategy coordinator so that she could lead that project effectively. She then proceeded to do exactly that by organizing a team of eight to thirteen mission agencies to work together as a team inside mainland China under her overall direction, each agency contributing their own particular primary skillset to the overall project. Under her leadership, their coordinated results were amazingly effective. The key to her success was that Joy made people feel good. Everyone liked her. People worked together smoothly under her overall direction and then went in and got successful results. But she was never herself residential to China. But still, in spite of that, her leadership produced amazing results. In an inspirational biography that includes photographs, Daniel, Joy's husband of sixty years, chronicles her amazing life journey, beginning with her childhood where she was labeled an ugly duckling and continuing through the next phases of her life as God laid His hand on Joy and began slowly preparing her to fulfill His plan for her life. As Joy's story slowly unfurls, Daniel shines a light on her important work as she matured into her purpose and eventually mobilized and led a large team of Christian mission agencies to partner together to reach previously unreachable groups of people in communist China with spectacular results. Throughout his retelling, Daniel gently reminds others that they, too, can create positive change in the world.

big four accounting firms news: The Consulting Trap Chris Hurl, Leah B. Werner, 2024-05-13T00:00:00Z The Consulting Trap does a deep dive into how governments have become hooked on private consultancy firms with dire consequences for democratic decision-making, public accountability and accessible public services. Hurl and Werner contend that firms like McKinsey, Accenture, KPMG and Deloitte increasingly take responsibility for core public services, trapping governments in cycles of dependency. Through orchestrating tax avoidance for the wealthy while engineering austerity for the rest, these firms have created the foundations for the deepening privatization of the public services, further entrenching their power. Drawing on case studies from Canada and around the world, Hurl and Werner investigate how big consultancies leverage social networks, institutionalize relationships, mine and commodify data, and establish policy pipelines that facilitate the quick diffusion of ideas across jurisdictions. Drawing from real world examples, The Consulting Trap offers strategies for how these powerful firms can be resisted using people's audits, public consultations, access to information requests, and social network analyses.
