Understanding Spanish Proficiency Levels

Spanish proficiency levels are commonly categorized according to internationally recognized frameworks like the CEFR. At this stage, learners can understand and use familiar everyday expressions and basic phrases. Communication is limited to simple interactions and immediate needs.

Independent User: B1 and B2

Intermediate learners can handle most situations encountered while traveling or working in Spanish-speaking environments. They can produce clear, detailed text and engage in conversations on familiar topics.

Proficient User: C1 and C2
