Geographical Location of Medicine Hat

Medicine Hat is situated in the southeastern part of Alberta, Canada. The city lies on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River, which is a significant waterway flowing through the prairies. It is approximately 295 miles (475 kilometers) southeast of Calgary and about 185 miles (300 kilometers) east of Lethbridge. The city's coordinates are roughly 50.0405° N latitude and 110.6773° W longitude, positioning it near the border with Saskatchewan province. This location places Medicine Hat within the Prairie Region of Canada, characterized by flatlands, grasslands, and agricultural zones.

Coordinates and Elevation

Medicine Hat's exact geographical coordinates are a key reference point for locating it on any map. At approximately 50 degrees north latitude, the city experiences a northern temperate climate. The elevation of Medicine Hat is around 690 meters (2,264 feet) above sea level, which influences its weather patterns and ecological characteristics. This elevation is typical for the Canadian prairies and contributes to the city's semi-arid conditions.

Regional Context within Alberta

Within Alberta, Medicine Hat is part of the southeastern quadrant, often referred to as the "South East Alberta" region. This area is known for its natural gas resources and agricultural productivity.

Medicine Hat serves as a regional hub for commerce, healthcare, and education, making its position on the map strategically important for residents and businesses alike.

Medicine Hat on Political and Physical Maps

When viewing Medicine Hat on political maps, it is marked as a city within Alberta, often highlighted due to its size and economic importance. Political maps emphasize boundaries such as provincial lines, municipal limits, and electoral districts, all of which include Medicine Hat as a key urban center.

Political Maps

Political maps of Alberta clearly designate Medicine Hat within the provincial framework. The city is distinguished by its municipal boundaries and is often indicated with a dot or city symbol. These maps help to understand Medicine Hat's jurisdictional role and its relationship with surrounding municipalities and counties, such as Cypress County.

Physical Maps

Physical maps provide information about the terrain and natural features around Medicine Hat. These maps illustrate the South Saskatchewan River, the prairies, and nearby natural formations, such as the coulees and badlands characteristic of the region. The physical landscape influences local climate and land use, which are visible on topographic and relief maps.

Digital Mapping and Navigation

In the digital age, Medicine Hat's presence on online maps and GPS navigation systems has become essential for travel and commerce. Digital platforms provide interactive maps that allow users to zoom in on streets, neighborhoods, and key landmarks within the city.

Popular Mapping Services

Services such as Google Maps, Apple Maps, and other GPS navigation tools accurately place Medicine Hat on their interfaces. These platforms offer detailed street maps, satellite imagery, and real-time traffic information. By entering "Medicine Hat" or using its coordinates, users can obtain driving directions, explore local businesses, and view terrain features.

Benefits of Digital Maps

- Real-time navigation and route planning
- Access to local points of interest and services

- Satellite and street-level views for enhanced spatial awareness
- Integration with mobile devices for on-the-go usage

Nearby Landmarks and Regional Significance

The position of Medicine Hat on the map is further contextualized by its proximity to notable landmarks and natural features. Its location serves as a gateway to several tourist attractions and economic zones within southeastern Alberta.

South Saskatchewan River

The South Saskatchewan River is a defining natural landmark that runs through Medicine Hat, providing vital water resources and recreational opportunities. The river valley is a prominent feature on physical maps and contributes to the city's scenic beauty.

Nearby Cities and Towns

Medicine Hat is surrounded by several smaller communities and towns, including Redcliff to the west and Swift Current in Saskatchewan to the east. Its location near the provincial border enhances its role as a commercial and transportation link between Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Economic and Cultural Landmarks

Key landmarks such as the Esplanade Arts & Heritage Centre and the Medicine Hat Exhibition & Stampede grounds are important cultural sites within the city. The presence of natural gas fields nearby also marks the city as a significant energy sector hub, which is often indicated on economic and industrial maps.

Practical Uses of Medicine Hat's Map Location

Understanding medicine hat on map is crucial for various practical applications. From urban planning to tourism, the city's geographic data supports multiple sectors.

Urban Development and Infrastructure Planning

City planners and engineers rely heavily on accurate maps to develop infrastructure projects, manage land use, and plan public transportation routes. Medicine Hat's layout, road networks, and zoning are all documented on detailed municipal maps.

Tourism and Travel

Tourists use maps to navigate to Medicine Hat's attractions, accommodations, and natural sites. Knowledge of the city's position relative to major highways, airports, and neighboring regions enhances travel planning efficiency.

Emergency Services and Environmental Management

Emergency responders utilize mapping information to coordinate services effectively, especially in natural disasters or public safety scenarios. Environmental agencies also depend on geographic data to monitor local ecosystems and manage resources sustainably.

Educational and Research Purposes

Maps featuring Medicine Hat are valuable tools in geography education and research. They help students and professionals analyze urban growth, demographic trends, and regional geography.

1. Locate Medicine Hat precisely using latitude and longitude coordinates.
2. Understand its relation to major cities and provincial boundaries.
3. Navigate using digital and physical maps for travel or business.

medicine hat on map: A History of the Twentieth Century in 100 Maps Tim Bryars, Tom Harper, 2014-12-10 The twentieth century was a golden age of mapmaking, an era of cartographic boom. Maps proliferated and permeated almost every aspect of daily life, not only chronicling geography and history but also charting and conveying myriad political and social agendas. Here Tim Bryars and Tom Harper select one hundred maps from the millions printed, drawn, or otherwise constructed during the twentieth century and recount through them a narrative of the century's key events and developments. As Bryars and Harper reveal, maps make ideal narrators, and the maps in this book tell the story of the 1900s—which saw two world wars, the Great Depression, the Swinging Sixties, the Cold War, feminism, leisure, and the Internet. Several of the maps have already gained recognition for their historical significance—for example, Harry Beck's iconic London Underground map—but the majority of maps on these pages have rarely, if ever, been seen in print since they first appeared. There are maps that were printed on handkerchiefs and on the endpapers of books; maps that were used in advertising or propaganda; maps that were strictly official and those that were entirely commercial; maps that were printed by the thousand, and highly specialist maps issued in editions of just a few dozen; maps that were envisaged as permanent keepsakes of major events, and maps that were relevant for a matter of hours or days. As much a pleasure to view as it is to read, A History of the Twentieth Century in 100 Maps celebrates the visual variety of twentieth century maps and the hilarious, shocking, or poignant narratives of the individuals and institutions caught up in their production and use.

medicine hat on map: A Harp in the Stars Randon Billings Noble, 2021-10-13 2021 Foreword Indies Honorable Mention for Essays What is a lyric essay? An essay that has a lyrical style? An essay that plays with form in a way that resembles poetry more than prose? Both of these? Or something else entirely? The works in this anthology show lyric essays rely more on intuition than exposition, use image more than narration, and question more than answer. But despite all this looseness, the lyric essay still has responsibilities--to try to reveal something, to play with ideas, or to show a shift in thinking, however subtle. The whole of a lyric essay adds up to more than the sum of its parts. In A Harp in the Stars, Randon Billings Noble has collected lyric essays written in four different forms--flash, segmented, braided, and hermit crab--from a range of diverse writers. The collection also includes a section of craft essays--lyric essays about lyric essays. And because lyric essays can be so difficult to pin down, each contributor has supplemented their work with a short meditation on this boundary-breaking form.

medicine hat on map: The Bar U & Canadian Ranching History S. M. Evans, 2004 For much of its 130-year history, the Bar U Ranch can claim to have been one of the most famous ranches in Canada. Its reputation is firmly based on the historical role that the ranch has played, its size and longevity, and its association with some of the remarkable people who have helped develop the cattle business and build the Canadian West. The long history of the ranch allows the evolution of the cattle business to be traced and can be seen in three distinct historical periods based on the eras of the individuals who owned and managed the ranch. These colourful figures, beginning with Fred Stimson, then George Lane, and finally Pat Burns, have left an indelible mark on the Bar U as well as Canadian ranching history. The Bar U and Canadian Ranching History is a fascinating story that integrates the history of ranching in Alberta with larger issues of ranch historiography in the American and Canadian West and contributes greatly to the overall understanding of ranching history.
