premier community association management: A practical guide to Community Management in Dubai Waqar Hasan, Waqar has spent his whole career working in the Community Management profession. Mostly self-taught, he has established and developed his business and trained his staff directly. The inspiration for this book comes from his desire to extend the dissemination of his knowledge further afield. With the recent introduction of a brand new and bespoke Jointly Owned Property (JOP) law in Dubai, the timing of the book seems perfect. The new law sets a milestone in the development of the Real Estate market in Dubai. It was needed to address specifically the diversity of the communities which have been developed in the region and to establish a framework to regulate their operations more effectively with less red tape. Many of the Community Management professionals who have learned the previous methods of Owners Association are now faced with the daunting task of unlearning the past and facing the future of JOP management. This book neatly and precisely sets out the key principles of JOP management. It does not pretend to be a reference document but does cover all the salient information that anyone seeking to work in the industry needs to know. It is an absolute must-read for anyone joining the family of Facilities Management (FM) and JOP service providers in the rapidly expanding domain of community managers, all of which are key parts in the success story of Dubai. premier community association management: Canada André Juneau, Martin Papillon, 2015 Traditionally associated with the federal government, Aboriginal policy has arguably become a far more complex reality. With or without formal self-government, Aboriginal communities and nations are increasingly assertive in establishing their own authority in areas as diverse as education, land management, the administration of justice, family and social services, and housing. The 2013 State of the Federation volume gathers experts and practitioners to discuss the contemporary dynamics, patterns, and challenges of Aboriginal multilevel governance in a wide range of policy areas. Recent court decisions on Aboriginal rights, notably on the duty to consult, have forced provincial and territorial governments to develop more sustained relationships with Aboriginal organizations and governments, especially in the management of lands and resources. Showing that Aboriginal governance is, more than ever, a multilevel reality, contributors address questions such as: What are the challenges in negotiating and implementing these bilateral and trilateral governance agreements? Are these governance arrangements conducive to real and sustained Aboriginal participation in the policy process? Finally, what are the implications of these various developments for Canadian federalism and for the rights and status of Aboriginal peoples in relation to the Canadian federation?

premier community association management: Organizational Assessment and Improvement in the Public Sector Kathleen M. Immordino, 2017-09-25 Calls for performance measures and metrics sound good, but public sector organizations often lack the tools required to assess the organization as a whole and create true change. In order to implement an integrated cycle of assessment, planning, and improvement, government agencies at all levels need a usable framework for organizational assessment that speaks to their unique needs. Organizational Assessment and Improvement in the Public Sector provides that framework, an understanding of assessment itself, and a methodology for assessment focused on the public sector. The book introduces the concept of organizational assessment, its importance, and its significance in public sector organizations. It addresses the organizational theory that underlies assessment, including change management, organizational and individual learning, and organizational development. Building on this, the author focuses on the processes and demonstrates how the communication that results from an assessment process can create a widely accepted case for change. She presents a model grounded in the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Program criteria but adapted for the culture of government organizations. She also addresses the criteria that form the basis for assessment and implementation and provides examples and best practices. Facing decreasing budgets and an increasing demand for services, government agencies must increase their capabilities, maximize their available fiscal and human resources, and increase their effectiveness and efficiency. They often operate in an atmosphere that prizes effectiveness but measures it in silos assigned to individual programs and a structure that encourages people to do more with less while systematically discouraging efficiency. Stressing the significant and important differences between a business and a government, this book supplies the knowledge and tools necessary to create a culture of assessment in government organizations at all levels.
