The Gujarati Language and Its Script

Gujarati is part of the Indo-Aryan branch of the Indo-European language family. It has evolved over centuries, influenced by Sanskrit and other regional dialects. The script used to write words in Gujarati language is the Gujarati script, which is an abugida derived from Devanagari but distinct in its style and characters. The script is written from left to right without any capitalization, and it features unique characters for vowels, consonants, and conjunct consonants.

Origin and Evolution of Gujarati Script

The Gujarati script originated in the 16th century and was primarily developed to write the Gujarati language. It is closely related to the Devanagari script used for Hindi and Sanskrit but differs in the absence of the horizontal line found in Devanagari. The script accommodates the phonetic nuances of Gujarati words, making it efficient for representing the language's sounds accurately.

Characteristics of Gujarati Script

Words in Gujarati language are composed using a set of 34 consonants and 12 vowels. The script includes diacritics to indicate vowel sounds that accompany consonants. Gujarati script also uses conjunct consonants that combine two or more consonants into a single glyph, which is essential for forming many words. This script is widely used in official documents, literature, media, and daily communication among Gujarati speakers.

Gujarati is a subject-object-verb (SOV) language, and words change form to indicate tense, gender, number, and case.

Nouns and Pronouns

Words in Gujarati language include nouns that have gender (masculine or feminine) and number (singular or plural). Pronouns vary accordingly, and proper declensions are applied based on grammatical context. For example, the word for 'boy' is "છોકરો" (chhokaro - masculine singular), while 'boys' is "છોકરાઓ" (chhokarao - masculine plural).

Verbs and Tenses

Gujarati verbs conjugate based on tense and subject agreement. There are three primary tenses: present, past, and future. Words in Gujarati language verb forms also reflect honorifics and respect levels, which are important in social interactions. For instance, the verb "to go" is "જાવું" (javu), and its present tense form for 'I go' is "હું જાઉં છું" (hu jaun).

words in gujarati language: The Oxford Handbook of Language and Prejudice Jane Setter, Sender Dovchin, Vijay A. Ramjattan, 2025-09-25 This volume explores and rearticulates the relationship between language and prejudice. Language plays an important role in the conceptualization, enactment, and defence of prejudice at both the individual and institutional level. Language (and language users) can also be the object of prejudice, and language itself can - with some conditions - be thought of as a solution to prejudice. The chapters in the volume examine how prejudice manifests itself, how it is perceived, and how it might be combatted. Parts I - III cover linguistic prejudices relating to gender and sexuality, ableism, and race and ethnicity, while Parts IV - VI explore social issues, politics and religion, and educational perspectives. The final part looks at projects and initiatives to tackle linguistic prejudice in a range of contexts. While recent work in the field has tended to inadvertently construct knowledge according to normative and Northern epistemologies, this volume features contributions that also provide an understanding of linguistic prejudice from Global South perspectives.
